What is the project about?

My goal is to build an application that maintains the news of soccer's top five leagues that are Premier League, La Liga, Ligue 1, Serie A, and Bundesliga. My application will navigate the top five soccer leagues and deliver latest scores including stats, timeline, and lineup. It will display precise information regarding who scored or assisted and who was booked whether it was a yellow or a red card; On top of that, you can watch videos of game previews, interviews (post or pre), highlights, and press conferences. The application will have a feature that updates the user of their favorite team, for instance:

- Where the games will take place at
- Who will and who will not play from the players
- What players are the club targeting to sign
- What players the club want to sell
- The club's schedule for the season
- The club's achievements
- The club's past matches
- Player's contracts
- The club's manager
- The club's NetWorth

Why this project?

I developed a passion for soccer as a result of growing up in a household where everyone is a soccer fanatic. When a significant soccer match was taking place, the atmosphere was absolutely perfect. Having family members visit or us (my family) going over while having snacks and arguing about the game was always entertaining on game nights, especially when a goal is scored, and everyone gets happy or mad, best part is that it unifies me with my friends and family. I even became more invested in the sport once I started playing it. Because it becomes so intensely competitive, the combination of aggressiveness, sprinting, and controlling the ball while attempting to move the ball beyond the net makes this sport so unique. I believe that such a system will be quite interesting and will help me track my favorite player's or team's stats and records. I can share the system with my family and friends since they love the sport too.
